AWARD POLICY

PURPOSE

The purpose of this document is to provide criteria for selecting the annual “Chief Sealth”, “Biologist” and “Conservation Officer” awards.

SCOPE

Members of the Native American Fish and Wildlife Society shall follow the guidelines in this policy for submitting their recommendations to the Board of Directors. Additionally, the appointed committee to designate the awardees and the Board of Directors shall follow the guidelines contained within this policy in their selection and announcement, ensuring non-eligible submissions are not selected.

DISCUSSION

The mission of the Society is to promote the prudent use of Native natural resources. This can only be accomplished through the dedication and hard work of all Society members. Awards for the “Biologist” and “Conservation Officer” will be given to two individual members, on a yearly basis, who best exemplifies his or her dedication and hard work. To honor these two individuals is not intended to diminish the contributions of other individuals but to reflect the accomplishments of those individuals involved in Native natural resource management activities. The “Chief Sealth” award shall honor one person who has made a significant and positive impact on Native natural resources.

1000.1 DEFINITION/CRITERIA

1000.1.1 Chief Sealth Award:

This award will go to anyone that works for a Tribe or agency in the natural resources field. This person should be working in the capacity of a director, manager, leader or similar position. This person is recognized for his exceptional work. This person is someone who has worked to develop their program in the name of fish and wildlife protection, preservation and enhancement or has worked with an agency that has made significant and positive impacts to and in Indian country. This person is someone who has dedicated their life and work to fish, wildlife and natural resources. They are a steward of the land or natural resources and their work contributes to the betterment of tribal natural resources. Their impact in Indian country creates the road to the future for better management of natural resources.

1000.1.2 Biologist Award:

This award will go to anyone that works for a Tribe and has a degree in biology or related field or has extensive in-the-field experience that has made an impact in preserving and/or protecting important fish or wildlife species or habitats. This person is one who has spent many hours outdoors collecting data and using that information to educate fellow Tribal and agency personnel in the importance of their work. This person is one who works to manage diverse projects for their Tribe. They cover many geographic areas, deal with multiple agencies, use technical skills in gathering and logging information, understand TEK, but most importantly promotes the importance of the science to protect fish and wildlife.

1000.1.3 Conservation Officer Award:

This award will go to a person that works in the capacity of a CO, game warden, fish and game officer or similar capacity. This person has the training and experience in carrying out themselves in a professional manner while working in an enforcement capacity. They work to ensure that all hunters, fishermen, recreationalists, etc. follow Tribal laws, rules and regulations of the reservation. They also work to continue to educate themselves on ever changing laws and regulations. They continue to participate in training in keeping their skill level proficient. They are responsible for conducting thorough and fair investigations as well as provide accurate and timely information to the court systems. This person is also involved in many other activities, i.e. visitor education, organize hunter and fishing educational courses, conduct fishing and hunting checks and look out for the environment and natural resources.
