Summer Internships

In cooperation with the US Forest Service, the Native American Fish and Wildlife Society (Society) is offering five (5) Summer Internships for high school/college aged students who are members of a federally recognized Tribe. Any Society member tribe is eligible to submit for such funding. Each tribe selected will receive $5,600.00 for their Intern. Students must be involved in learning about natural resources, fish, wildlife, traditional ecological knowledge, climate change or any other such project that deals with Tribal or Traditional resources.

Additional requirements: Interns must attend one of the youth practicums that are sponsored by the Society; right now they are being planned for the Southwest and one other region. If possible they should also attend a regional conference, sponsored by the Society, or a similar conference, workshop or training that is held during their internship. They must spend some time in dealing with a US Forest Service project, issue or work cooperatively with Forest Service staff. It's important to show how the Society and Forest Service work cooperatively as a team in assisting native youth in their career path.

For questions regarding the internships, contact: Elveda Martinez, 775-773-2044.

If interested, Tribe's should submit the following application to the Society by March 31, 2017. Applications should be submitted to:

Karen Lynch, Tech Editor
NAFWS – National Office
8515 Pearl Street – Suite 203
Thornton, CO 80229
Or e-mail to: klynch@nafws.org

Those Tribe's selected for an intern will be notified by April 28, 2017.

Upon completion of the internship, the student must provide a written report with pictures on what they did during the summer along with a powerpoint presentation.
